ANTARCTICA

NO BORDERS

The Antarctic Treaty signed in 1959 by Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Chile, the United States, France, the United Kingdom, Japan, Norway, New Zealand, South Africa, and the USSR, states that the sixth continent Antarctica is a common territory, open to all peaceful peoples and to cultural and scientific cooperation.

The first edition of the Antarctica World Passport created by the artists Lucy+Jorge Orta is a symbolic proposal for a new nation of humanity, and the foundation for the Antarctic Village.

The Antarctica World Passport may be issued to every person wishing to become a citizen of this continent allowing them to travel freely throughout the world. On deliverance it will request in return that each citizen take responsibility for their actions. The new world citizen will dedicate him or herself to combat all acts of barbarity, to fight against intimidation and poverty, to support social progress, to protect the environment and endangered species, to safeguard human dignity and to defend the inalienable rights to liberty, justice and peace in the world.
